ISLAMOPHOBIA AND ANTI-SEMITISM IN THE U.S.

Friday, April 26, 2019
3:10–4:30 p.m.
Dana Room, 4th Floor, Dana Library
Rutgers University, Newark, U.S.

Dr. Dalia Fahmy is Associate Professor of Political Science at Long Island University where she teaches courses on U.S. Foreign Policy, World Politics, International Relations, Military and Defense Policy, Causes of War, and Politics of the Middle East. Dr. Fahmy is a Senior Fellow at the Center for Global Policy in Washington, D.C. Dr. Fahmy’s books include “The Rise and Fall of The Muslim Brotherhood and the Future of Political Islam” (forthcoming), and two co-edited volumes “Illiberal Intelligentsia and the Future of Egyptian Democracy”, and “International Relations in a Changing World”.

Dr. Stephen Eric Bronner is the Board of Governors Distinguished Professor of Political Science at Rutgers University and Director of Global Relations at the Center for the Study of Genocide and Human Rights. Author of A Rumor about the Jews and The Bigot, his writings have been translated into more than a dozen languages. Professor Bronner is the recipient of many awards including the 2011 MEPeace Prize from the Middle East Political Network based in Jerusalem.